A former child television star, Moore is riding on the cusp of the “cougar phenomenon” that is starting to grip the country. Books have been written about it and TV news and talk shows have begun to focus attention to it.

What is a ‘cougar’? According to Moore, a single mother of two teenaged daughters, “A ‘cougar’ is an older woman who seeks the pleasurable company of younger men. I see it as a metaphor for female empowerment. The ‘cougar’ is a woman who has overcome sexual taboos and now lives her life to the fullest.”

Moore’s theory is supported by statistics indicating that the number of mature women with younger men in our society has soared in the last 25 years from 15% to 30% – as evidenced by such bold-faced couples as Demi Moore and Ashton Kutcher, Courtney Cox and David Arquette, Madonna and Guy Richie and longtime companions Susan Sarandon and Tim Robbins.
